RELATING TO ONE'S PARENTS

A person's parents are the persons who came together to give birth to that person. Some parents take care of their children but some don't. However, those who gave birth to you are yet your parents.

Relating to one's parents really requires much wisdom. Your parents are humans and as such may have an improper desire. So if you have grown, you ought to find what is best for yourself. However allow their proper desires to have effects on you, but remember, the day they die it is that you've known and accepted that will keep you going.

Respect your parents sensibly. Whatever they want you to do please do it if it is appealing by your findings in life.